

MEDIA GUIDES FOR THE REPORTING OF CHILD SEXUAL ABUSE:

CM → A.M. → A

MEDIA GUIDES FOR THE REPORTING OF CHILD SEXUAL ABUSE:

CM, A.M.

A.M.

A

MEDIA GUIDES FOR THE REPORTING OF CHILD SEXUAL ABUSE: CM, A.M, A

D B

زنجیو . C

A

Media guides for the reporting of
Child Sexual Abuse: Consultation Summary

B 66 و 66

C

C
CC B

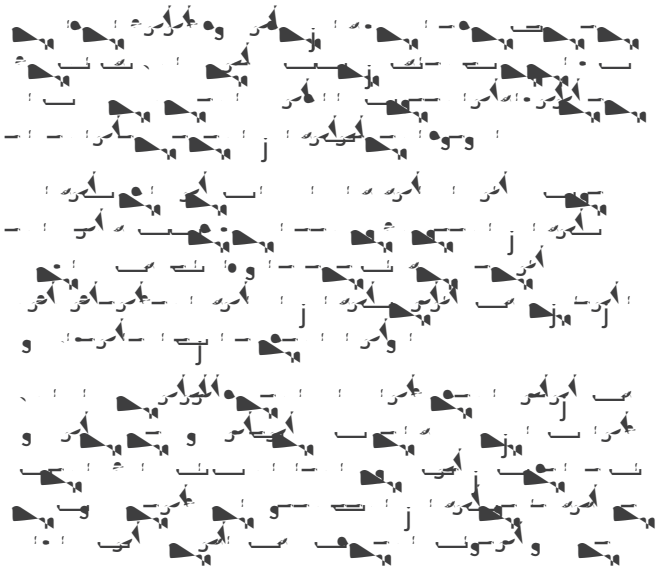

F

CONTENTS

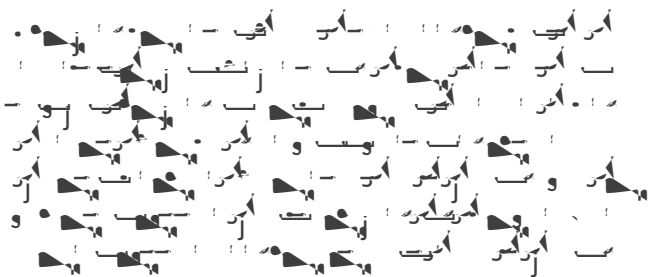

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS AND TERMINOLOGY	3
Content note
Acknowledgment and thanks
A brief note on terminology
Where to get help
EXECUTIVE SUMMARY	4
KEY CONSULTATION THEMES	5
Trauma-informed practice
Vicarious trauma
Readiness to disclose – and to report
Agency and control
Clarity and informed consent from the outset
Expectation management and preparation
Changes to principles
Understanding the media
Advocacy and moving to thematic, not episodic, reporting
Tailoring around different media cohorts and ‘entry points’
Accountability of media and other institutions
Clear boundaries and parameters
Intersectionality and diversity

Tensions

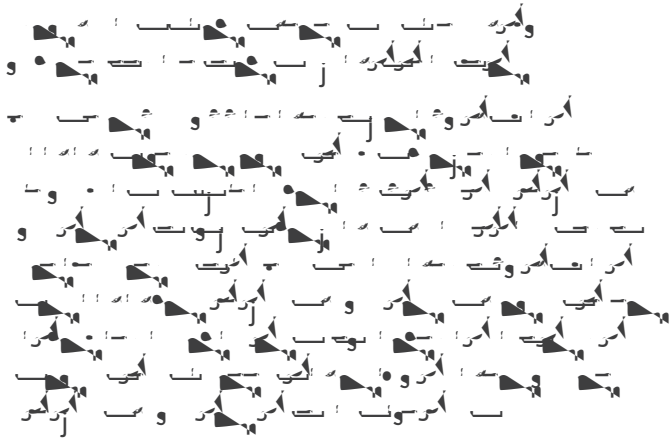

EXPECTATION MANAGEMENT AND PREPARATION

TAILORING AROUND DIFFERENT MEDIA COHORTS AND ENTR POINTS'

INTERSECTIONALIT AND DIVERSIT

F. A.M.

FEEDBACK ON DELIVER AND ONGOING SUPPORT

Feedback on the delivery and ongoing support was gathered from a range of stakeholders, including police, health professionals, and the public. Key points raised include the need for clear communication, timely updates, and ongoing support for victims and their families. The importance of a multi-agency approach was also highlighted, with the need for better coordination between police, health, and social services. The role of the media in raising awareness and providing support was also discussed, with the need for accurate and sensitive reporting. The importance of ongoing support for victims and their families was also highlighted, with the need for clear communication and timely updates. The importance of a multi-agency approach was also highlighted, with the need for better coordination between police, health, and social services. The role of the media in raising awareness and providing support was also discussed, with the need for accurate and sensitive reporting.

Media champions and mentors

• The role of media champions and mentors is to provide support and guidance to journalists and other media professionals who are reporting on child sexual abuse. They are often experienced journalists or other professionals who have a good understanding of the issues and the media landscape.

• Media champions and mentors can help to ensure that reporting is accurate, fair, and sensitive to the needs of victims and the public. They can also help to identify and address any gaps in reporting or areas where further investigation is needed.

• The role of media champions and mentors is an ongoing one, and they should be available to provide support and guidance as needed. They should also be able to provide feedback to the media on their reporting and to help to improve the quality of their work.

Best practice, award and reward schemes

• Best practice, award and reward schemes are designed to recognize and encourage high-quality reporting on child sexual abuse. They can help to raise the profile of the issues and to ensure that the best reporting is given the attention it deserves.

• Best practice schemes can be developed by the media, industry bodies, or government. They can be based on a range of criteria, such as the accuracy of reporting, the sensitivity of the language used, and the quality of the investigation.

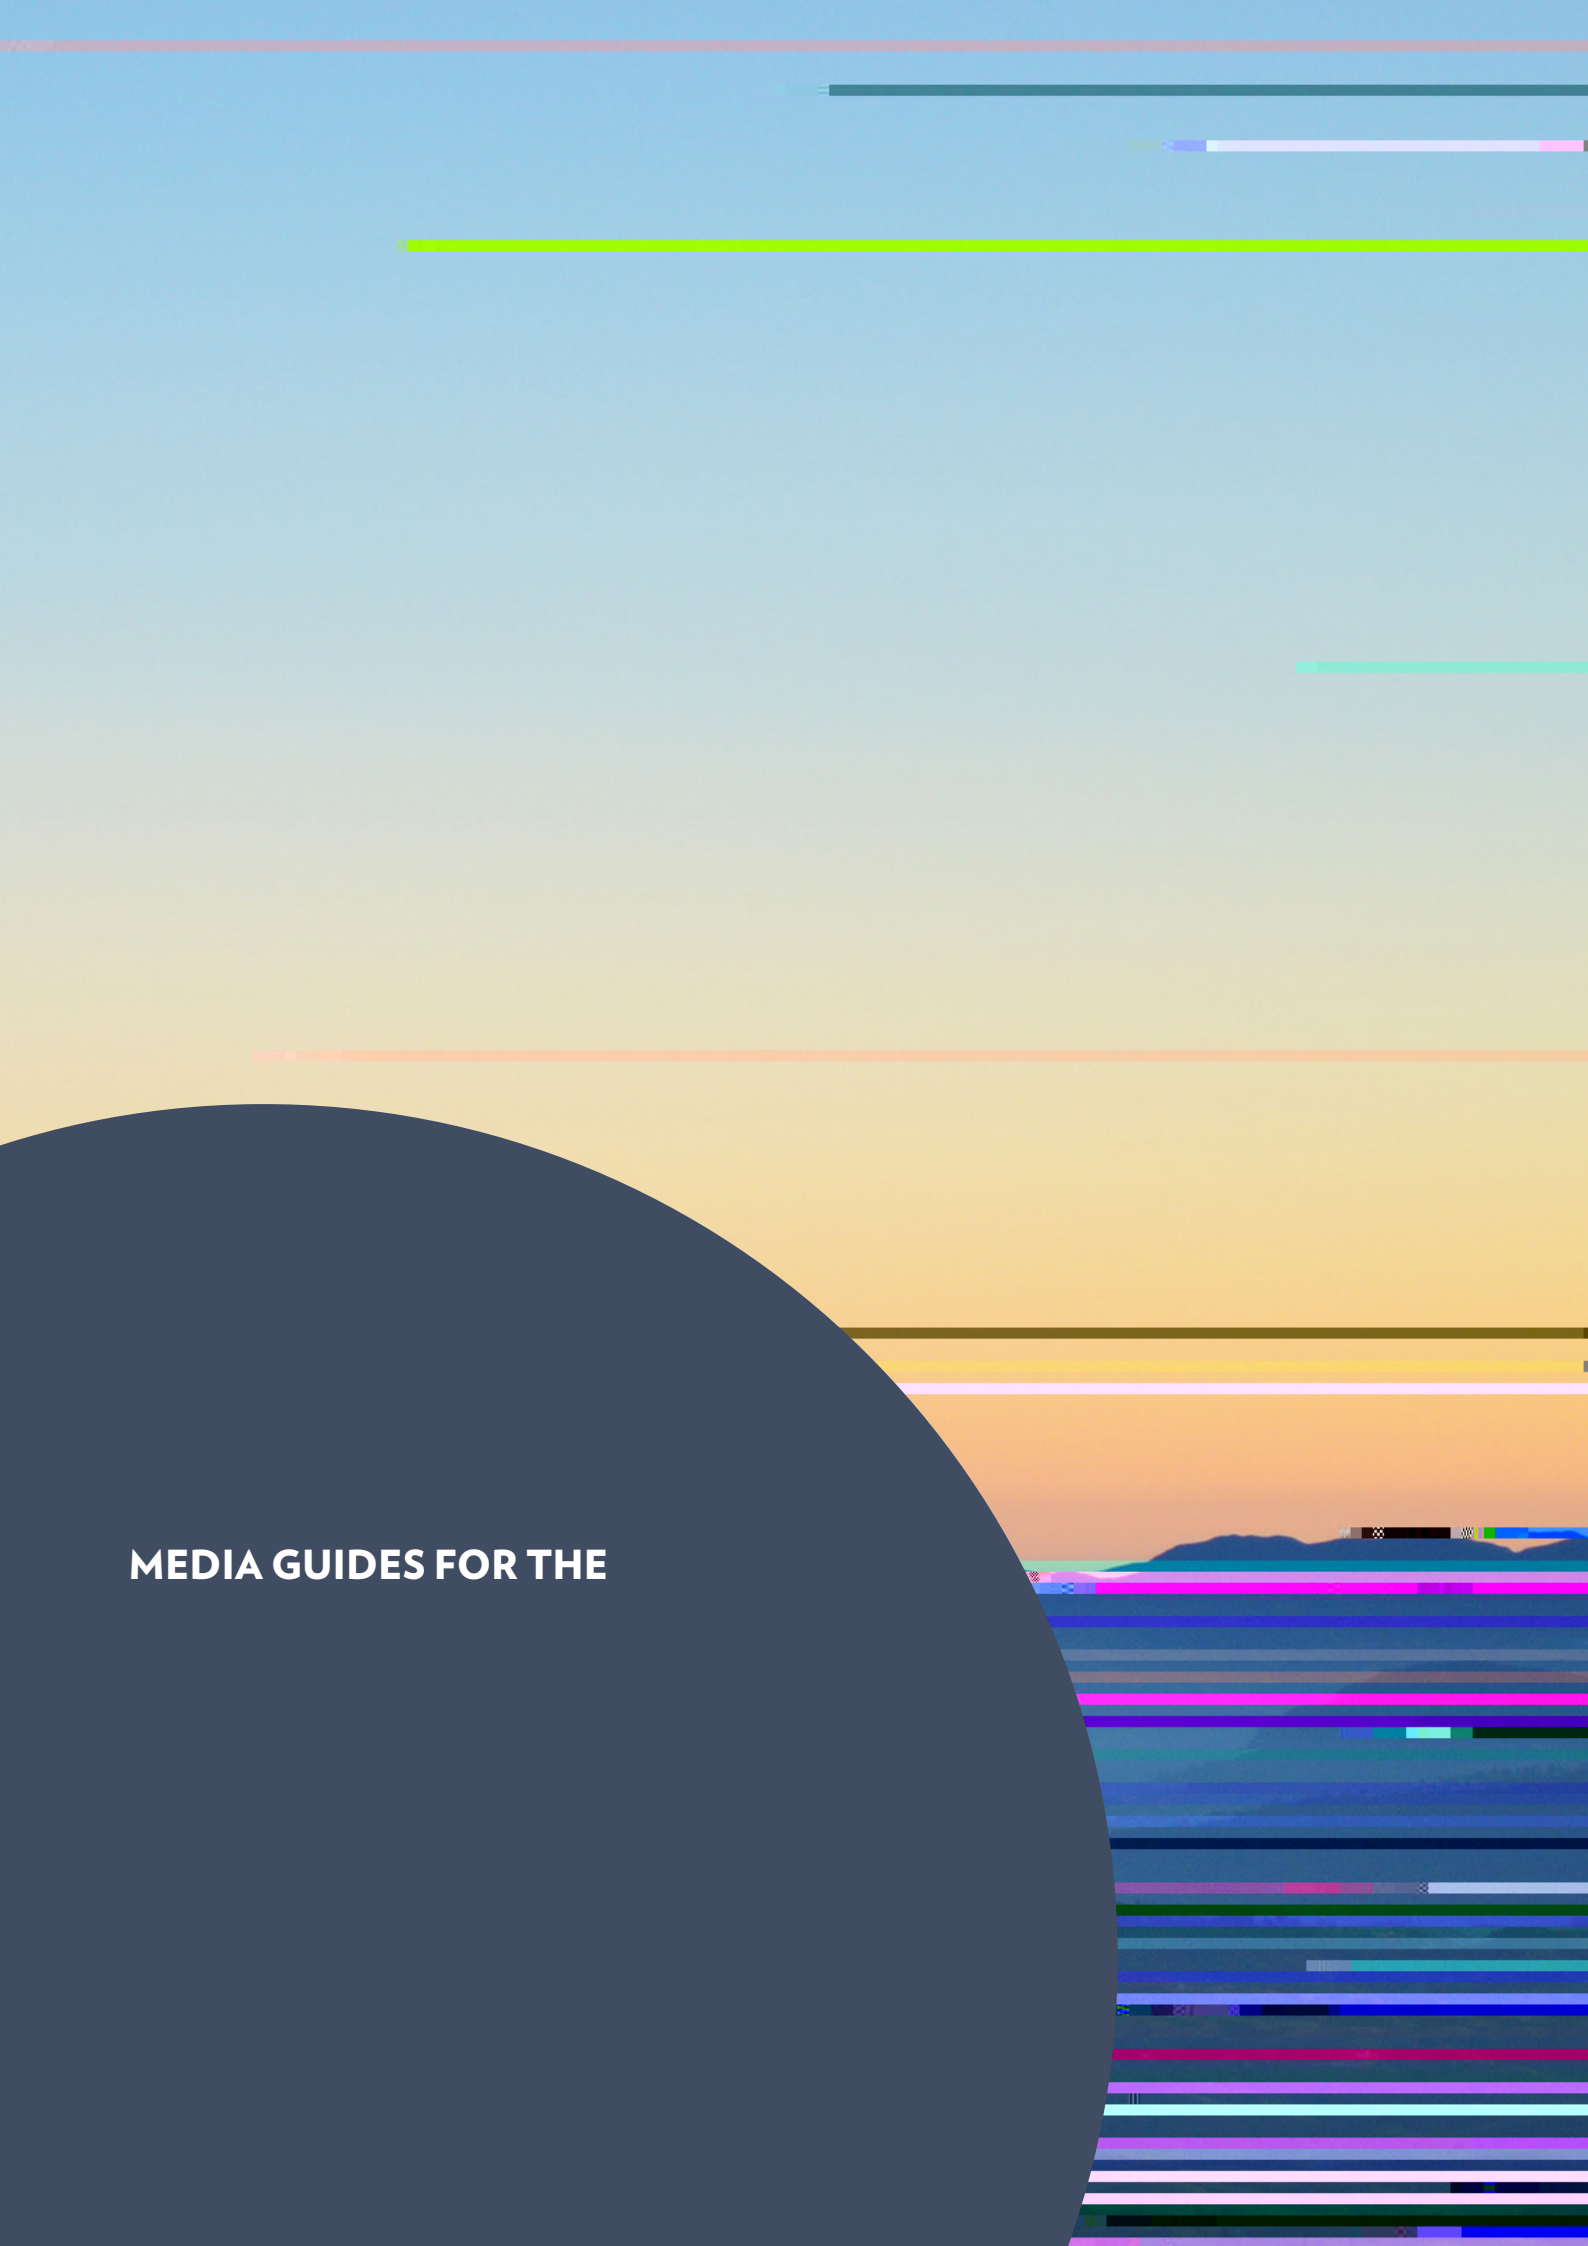

• Award and reward schemes can be used to recognize individual journalists or media organizations who have produced outstanding reporting. They can be given in a variety of ways, such as through a ceremony or a public announcement.

Dissemination

• Dissemination is the process of making information available to a wider audience. It is an important part of the reporting process, as it ensures that the information is shared and that the public is kept up to date.

• There are a number of ways to disseminate information, such as through the media, social media, and public events. It is important to choose the right channels and to tailor the message to the audience.

• Dissemination can also be used to raise awareness of the issues and to encourage action. It can be a powerful tool for change, and it is essential for ensuring that the public is informed and that the issues are taken seriously.

MEDIA GUIDES FOR THE